

To whom it may concern,

I am a Veteran of Iraq, I served for the first six months as an Infantry man in Baghdad and Riyadh. I am currently working as a computer technician for the Peoria Unified School District and am a fulltime college student at DeVry University. I attend Calvary Community Church who, as far as I know, has no affiliation with the radio station K-love.

The music and message of K-love radio is positive. If we want to look at it from a decidedly Christian viewpoint the music is holy worship to Jesus the King. It is positive and keeps us focused on him on a daily basis.

If we want to look at it from a legal standpoint. Forgive my lack of knowledge of FCC protocols, but I know that they are not swearing, giving any kind of negative political campaigning of any kind, or doing anything illegal that I can think of. If it becomes illegal to praise Jesus and tell people about him, all of us will be criminals.

If we want to look at this from a socio-political aspect. This, as a conflict-theorist perspective, is just one more way to keep one more demographic of the society in line by appeasing our simple perceived needs of a protector that loves and cares for us. Simply put, you keep us Christians in line by giving us this one concession that undoubtedly isn't hurting any government entity to leave on the air.

I am proud to live in a country that allows us to praise and worship whatever God we want to. I have seen a people subjugated by forced religion and it is not right. We as Christians know that rules are not what is going to change people's minds about Jesus, it is Jesus that changes people's minds and hearts. I say keep this radio station on, and all the other religion's radio stations as well.

I could probably go on, but everyone involved would probably have difficulty thinking properly. I will say this, whatever happens to this radio station, whether it is taken away, or kept in place we will keep praying for those of you who "do not know" that you will one day know the glory of the King of Kings.
